

Antique Coal Purdonium, Scottish, Walnut, Brass, Fireside Fuel Store, Victorian

DESCRIPTION

Our Stock # 25088

This is a delightful antique coal purdonium. A Scottish, fireside fuel store in walnut with brass fittings and tools, dating to the Victorian period, circa 1860. A charming and practical fireside companion, rich in traditional appeal and decorative presence.

- Attractive Victorian fireside interest, ideal for both period and contemporary hearths
- In good order with a light, sympathetic patina across the brass fittings and hardware
- Crafted from light walnut stocks, showcasing fine grain interest and a warm caramel hue
- Twin field panel doors with classic proportions conceal the coal liner tray
- Dressed with a gadrooned brass pull to the right-hand door for smooth access
- Tactile brass carry handle to the top provides ease of movement and elegant form
- Complete with a pair of coal tools, including a scallop-form coal shovel and pointed poker
- Shovel mount integrated upon the rear fascia for handy storage and display
- The poker residing within the generous confines of the interior
