

Antique Three Decanter Tantalus, English, Oak, Drinks Caddy, Edwardian, C.1910

DESCRIPTION

Our Stock # 25221

This is a distinguished antique three bottle Tantalus. An English, oak and silver plated drinks caddy with a trio of cut glass decanters, dating to the late Edwardian period, circa 1910. A fine prize-given example, offering refined decorative appeal and functionality for the discerning collector or connoisseur.

- Quality oak frame, displaying fine grain interest and rich caramel hues throughout
- Silver plated cappings and a tactile, rolled carry handle accentuate the form
  - Trio of cut glass decanters, each with diamond cut finish and bright, clear appearance
  - Decanters nest securely on a baize-lined platform, each seated within its own division
  - Substantial faceted ball stoppers rest snugly within flared rims
- Stout construction, combining decorative elegance with practical storage for fine spirits
  - Personalised plaque to fascia, engraved as a 1st place prize for a Naval obstacle race in 1912
  - Dressed to the rear with a circular lock escutcheon – key present
  - A handsome addition to any drinks cabinet, bar or gentleman's study

DIMENSIONS

- Max Width: 36.5cm (14.25")
- Max Depth: 13.5cm (5.25")
- Max Height: 33.5cm (13.25")
- Decanter Width: 8.5cm (3.25")
- Decanter Depth: 8.5cm (3.25")
- Decanter Height: 22cm (8.75")

