DESCRIPTION

Our Stock # 25362

This is an appealing antique cleric's book stand. A Middle Eastern, folding lectern in rosewood with brass page weights, dating to the Victorian period, circa 1880. Rich in ecclesiastical charm and crafted with fine detail, this versatile stand is as decorative as it is functional.

- Superb articulated book stand, ideal for liturgical or scholarly use
- Select stocks display deep colour tones and fine grain interest
- Folding form with an adjustable easel support, allowing varied reading angles
- Adorned with ornate brass fretwork, offering elegant Middle Eastern influence
- Pair of integrated brass page weights help retain the desired reading position
- Set upon a shaped plinth base, with a tiered edge and classic squat bun feet
- Collapsible form for ease of storage and portability
- In very good antique order, with light wear commensurate with age and use

This antique cleric's book stand is a distinctive and beautifully crafted reading lectern, offering antique utility with decorative appeal. Delivered ready to enjoy.
