

Long Antique Altar Table, Oriental Elm, Display, Hall, Qing Dynasty, Victorian

DESCRIPTION

Our Stock # 25348

This is a long antique altar table. An Oriental, Asian Elm hallway, display or serving table, dating to the early Victorian period, circa 1850. Graced with commanding proportion and classical elegance, this piece exemplifies the decorative finesse of Qing dynasty aesthetics.

class="p1">Striking Oriental altar table with Qing dynasty influence, ideal for grand interiors

Crafted from select Asian elm, presenting deep caramel hues throughout Displays in superb antique order, lightly timeworn with desirable patina cli class="p1">Long display surface, perfect for hallways, serving, or bonsai arrangements class="p1">Charming scrollwork pediments rise at each end, evoking traditional altar designs class="p1">Distinctive shaped apron complements the clean linearity of the frame class="p1">Raised upon pierced fretwork supports with ornate leaf motif

Standing upon sturdy block legs, providing confident support and balance

DIMENSIONS

Max Width: 227cm (89.25")
Max Depth: 39.5cm (15.5")
Max Height: 97.5cm (38.5")
Surface Height: 91cm (35.75")
Kneehole Width: 134cm (52.75")
Kneehole Height: 82.5cm (32.5")

A beautifully crafted example of early Victorian Oriental furniture, this antique altar table