

Antique Hearth Footman, English Brass, Fireplace Plate Warmer, Trivet, Victorian

DESCRIPTION

Our Stock # 25326

This is an antique hearth footman. An English, brass fireplace plate warmer or trivet, dating to the late Victorian period, circa 1900. A charming and decorative fireside piece with Georgian influence and excellent maker's detail.

- Fine example of a late 19th century fireside footman, ideal for the traditional hearth

- Crafted in quality brass, displaying a rich golden tonality with light, sympathetic ageing

- Georgian revival styling to the form, lending period elegance to any interior

- Tool rest presented across the fascia, flanked by a pair of rolled brass handles upon shaped mounts

- Engraved with registered design number circa 1900 and the maker's initials W & P

- Stands confidently upon a quartet of legs — broad front knees and cylindrical rear supports

- Polished finish provides a striking lustre, perfect for enhancing the fireside ambience

44 (3) 207 1833 511 in the hand at a substantial 8.8kg (19lb)

A superb example of Victorian craftsmanship with The Old White Way, Olden, Devon, EX5 4PW

DIMENSIONS

Max Width: 48.5cm (19")

Max Depth: 34.5cm (13.5")

Max Height: 27.5cm (10.75")

LIST PRICE

£985.00

sales@londonfine.co.uk

E. & O. E.