

Large Antique Fall-Front Bureau, English, Oak, Writing Cabinet, Georgian, C.1750

DESCRIPTION

Our Stock # 25522

This is a large antique fall-front bureau. An English, oak five-drawer writing cabinet, dating to the Georgian period, circa 1750. Exuding refined 18th century craftsmanship, this bureau presents a beautifully executed writing interior with fine detailing and excellent utility.

<li class="p1">Handsome Georgian bureau, offering period charm and exceptional proportion

<li class="p1">Crafted from select English oak, with warm caramel hues and prominent grain interest

<li class="p1">Oak graced with an abundance of medullary rays throughout

<li class="p1">Fall-front writing slope opens smoothly, resting upon a pair of sliding lopers

<li class="p1">Writing surface set at a comfortable height of 75cm, ideal for everyday use

<li class="p1">Finished with a classic forest green baize skiver, lightly time-worn with character

<li class="p1">Interior reveals a suite of small drawers and pigeonholes, centred around a lockable cabinet door

<li class="p1">Features a pair of concealed compartments, ingeniously disguised as a bookcase

<li class="p1">Retains its original brass hardware, including a pair of elegant, hand-shaped drop handles
