

Large Antique Fall-Front Bureau, English, Oak, Writing Cabinet, Georgian, C.1750

DESCRIPTION

Our Stock # 25522
This is a large antique fall-front bureau. An English, oak five-drawer writing cabinet, dating to the Georgian period, circa 1750. Exuding refined 18th century craftsmanship, this bureau presents a beautifully executed writing interior with fine detailing and excellent utility.

- Handsome Georgian bureau, offering period charm and exceptional proportion
- Crafted from select English oak, with warm caramel hues and prominent grain interest
- Oak graced with an abundance of medullary rays throughout
- Fall-front writing slope opens smoothly, resting upon a pair of sliding lopers
- Writing surface set at a comfortable height of 75cm, ideal for everyday use
- Finished with a classic forest green baize skiver, lightly time-worn with character
- Interior reveals a suite of small drawers and pigeonholes, centred around a lockable cabinet door
 - Features a pair of concealed compartments, ingeniously disguised as flanking pilasters
