

Antique Serving Bowl, English, Ceramic, Fruit Dish, Oriental Taste, Circa 1920

DESCRIPTION

Our Stock # 25503

This is an antique serving bowl, an English ceramic fruit dish with Oriental taste, dating to the early 20th century, circa 1920. With dazzling colour and striking dragon motif, this decorative dish delivers superb early 20th century artistry.

- Eye-catching ceramic serving bowl, ideal as a fruit dish or centrepiece
- Features a vivid dragon motif at the centre, coloured in bold tones against a lemon yellow ground
- Finished in a lustre glaze, creating a shimmering, iridescent effect across the surface
- Marked to the base with the Bursley Ware hallmark and 'Dragon' pattern designation
- Superb Oriental taste, designed by Frederick Rhead for Wood & Sons
- In fine antique condition with vibrant coloration and fine glaze finish throughout

This antique serving bowl makes a dramatic statement in any setting, whether used as a display piece, fruit bowl, or a collector's item of early 20th century British ceramics. A fine example of Oriental taste design in English pottery. Delivered ready for the home.
