Antique Six Seat Country Kitchen Dining Table, English Oak, Refectory, Victorian

DESCRIPTION

Our Stock # 25531
This is an antique six seat country kitchen dining table. An English, oak ecclesiastical or farmhouse table in Gothic revival taste, dating to the late Victorian period, circa 1880.

- Traditional Victorian refectory table with Gothic overtones and fine country character
- Crafted from quality oak stocks displaying fine grain interest and rich caramel hues
- Four plank top with a tiered edge detail for tactile comfort and visual depth
- Of modern dining height, with a comfortable kneehole clearance of 75.5cm (29.7)

- Distinctive angled supports intersect the stout stretcher rail with confident lines
- Standing upon a pair of long trestle feet with squared toes for stability and proportion
- Generous top comfortably accommodates six guests for daily dining or entertaining
- Ideal for use as a country kitchen centrepiece or ecclesiastical style dining room

A beautifully proportioned Victorian dining table, rich with Gothic revival influence and rustic appeal, perfect for both traditional and contemporary interiors. Solid joints and construction, delivered ready for the home.
