

Antique Officer's Correspondence Box, English, Writing Slope, Regency, C.1820

DESCRIPTION

Our Stock # 25414

This is an antique correspondence box. An English, rosewood writing slope case, dating to the Regency period, circa 1820. A quality example with fine hidden storage and a beautifully appointed interior.

- Crafted from select stocks, offering fine grain interest and warm caramel hues

- Casework edged in brass for a tactile, attractive contrast

- Unmarked brass plaque to the lid, with a matching lock escutcheon to the fascia – in working order, key present

- Opens to reveal a beautifully appointed interior, ideal for writing and correspondence

- Later tooled and embossed crimson skivers, arranged in two folding sections

- Document storage compartments situated beneath each lift-up writing surface

- Rear section hosts a pen tray and a pair of glass ink wells, adding charm and function

- A delightful pair of hidden drawers reside behind the removable fascia
