

Pair of Vintage Pagoda Lanterns, Japanese, Cast Iron Tea Light Holders, Art Deco

DESCRIPTION

Our Stock # 25604

This is a pair of vintage Pagoda lanterns. A Japanese, painted cast iron tea light holder, dating to the Art Deco period, circa 1930. Wonderfully decorative and versatile, these lanterns can be used free-standing or suspended, bringing an elegant Japanese accent to porches, verandas, or interiors.

- Cast iron construction finished in a lightly time-worn vermillion hue
- Striking hexagonal roof in Pagoda style, rising prominently above the body
  - Body host to crosshatched fretwork with bulbed form, enhancing the play of candlelight
  - Small door to the fascia opens to reveal a 5cm diameter tea light holder
- Each lantern fitted with a folding hanging loop to the domed lid for elevation
- Charming as porch, veranda, or garden lanterns, equally at home indoors
- Standing upon a trio of splayed legs for situating along a sideboard or table
- Distinctive blend of Art Deco style and Japanese design tradition

This pair of Japanese Pagoda tea light lanterns offers a delightful decorative touch, combining period charm, atmospheric lighting, and authentic craftsmanship. Delivered ready to display.
