

Trio of Vintage Country Kitchen Chairs, English Ash, Elm, Victorian Revival Seat

DESCRIPTION

Our Stock # 25650

This is a charming trio of vintage country kitchen chairs. An English, ash & elm stick back seat and presented in Victorian revival taste, dating to the late 20th century, circa 1980. Handsome and well-crafted, these chairs exude classic farmhouse character and offer enduring comfort for the traditional dining room or country breakfast setting.

- Of English origin, dating to the late 20th century, circa 1980
- Crafted from select ash and elm with wonderful grain interest and warm caramel hues
- Stick back design with long spindles set beneath a tightly hooped crest rail
- Shaped saddle seat provides an inviting and comfortable squab at a height of 45cm (17.75")

- Each raised upon a quartet of turned and splayed legs, lending excellent stability
- Legs united by a distinctive crinoline stretcher, adding strength and visual charm
 - Delightful Victorian revival styling captures the essence of 19th century craftsmanship

- Finished with a gently aged patina, enhancing the natural appeal of the timber
- Ideal for a country kitchen, cottage dining room, or farmhouse interior
