

Antique Jardiniere Stand, English, Box Tree, Bush Planter, Georgian, Circa 1750

DESCRIPTION

Our Stock # 25660

This is an antique jardiniere stand. An English, mahogany and brass tree or bush planter, dating to the Georgian period, circa 1750. A delightfully self-contained piece, showcasing the refinement and elegance of Georgian craftsmanship.

- Select stocks present fine grain interest with rich caramel hues throughout
- Lift-out brass liner, original in form, showing a gently time-worn patina
- Attractive bowed form, offering generous internal capacity for planting
  - Useful tool drawer set to the front — ideal for pruners, twine or small garden accessories

- Dressed with a brass batwing lock escutcheon and inset working lock — key present
- Brass drop handles to each side for ease of repositioning
- Raised upon a quartet of squat cabriole legs, terminating in shaped pad feet
- Displays warm colour and desirable ageing commensurate with its mid 18th century origins

A superb example of an early Georgian jardiniere, wonderfully proportioned and full of period charm. Ready to grace an entrance hall, orangery or interior garden setting. Solid joints and construction, delivered ready for the home.
