

Trio of Antique Station Chairs, English Elm, Reception Hall Side Seat, Victorian

DESCRIPTION

Our Stock # 25703

This is a trio of antique station chairs. An English, elm and beech reception hall side seat set, dating to the Victorian period, circa 1880. Attractive in form and colour, these chairs present excellent craftsmanship and versatile charm.

- Crafted in beech and elm, exhibiting fine grain interest and rich caramel hues
- Bowed crest rail embellished with carved foliate decoration for elegant visual appeal
- Five turned spindles form the gently angled back rest, supported by a pair of canted side posts
- Saddle squabs in fine English elm, displaying delightful figuring and a tactile, inviting finish
- Raised upon turned beech legs, united by H-stretchers for added stability and longevity
- Ideal for an entrance hall, reception area, or as occasional seating throughout the home

A wonderfully presented trio of Victorian station chairs, offering warmth, charm, and practical seating for any traditional interior. Solid joints and construction, delivered ready for the home or institution
