

Antique Mortar and Pestle Set, English Bronze Apothecary Grinder, Georgian, 1750

DESCRIPTION

Our Stock # 25387

This is an antique mortar and pestle set. An English, bronze apothecary or chemist's grinding aid, dating to the mid Georgian period, circa 1750. A fascinating early example, rich with period character and appealing surface detail.

- Charming mid-Georgian mortar and pestle, circa 1750
- Crafted in quality bronze displaying a gentle, desirable patination
- Bronze presents deep golden tonality, enhanced by centuries of handling
- Mortar with tapering form, dressed with concentric banding to the fascia
- Long pestle of tactile form, finished with distinctive lobed ends
- Excellent weight and balance throughout – a hallmark of robust 18th century craftsmanship
- Suitable for decorative display or use within a kitchen, study or apothecary setting

A superb Georgian bronze mortar and pestle, offering both historic charm and attractive presence. A fine addition to any period collection or interior. Delivered ready for the home.
