

Antique Writing Table, English, Knee-hole Desk, Home Office, Study, Regency, 1820

DESCRIPTION

Our Stock # 25768

This is an antique writing table. An English, mahogany scribe's desk, dating to the Regency period, circa 1820. A superbly proportioned example, ideally suited for modern use while retaining authentic period character.

- Crafted in quality mahogany stocks, displaying fine grain interest and rich caramel hues

- Presents a desirable aged patina, in good original order
- Wide writing surface, well suited to contemporary requirements
- Central storage compartment positioned above the knee-hole
- Fascia arranged with a dual-height drawer to one side
- Pair of drawers to the opposite side, offering balanced visual symmetry
- Drawer fascia dressed with brass drop handles over decorative backplates
- Generous internal compartment concealed behind a faux drawer fascia

- Writing surface set at a useful modern height of 81cm (32")

DIMENSIONS

Max Width: 107cm (42.25")
 Max Depth: 52cm (20.5")
 Max Height: 89.5cm (35.25")
 Writing Surface Height: 81cm (32")
 Knee-hole Width: 53cm (20.75")
 Knee-hole Height: 66cm (26")

LIST PRICE

£2,950.00

Search London Fine for #25768 , or scan the QR code for more photos and details