

Antique Railway Director's Gladstone Bag, English Leather Portmanteau, GWR, 1920

DESCRIPTION

Our Stock # 25838

This is an antique railway director's Gladstone bag. An English, leather portmanteau case with railway interest, dating to the early 20th century, circa 1920.

- Fine example with English railway heritage, ideal for revival festivals
- Displays a desirable aged patina with a lovingly time-worn finish
- Quality black leather with deep tonality and gentle weathering to the edges
- Appealing portmanteau case in the classic Gladstone bag form
- Dual leather handles, residing either side of the zip upon brass loops
- Combined zip stay and lock mechanism to one end – key absent
- Attractive gabardine check lining in good order, with two pouch pockets
- Accentuated with a gold GWR monogram - Great Western Railway

This is a fascinating antique Gladstone bag, the GWR monogram suggesting it was used for carrying a railway hat and associated whistles. In appealing, gently aged order, this bag would be ideally suited for a revival festival or for collectors of railway interest. Delivered ready to enjoy.
