

Antique Sherry Decanter, English, Glass, Silver Plate, Spirit Bottle, Edwardian

DESCRIPTION

Our Stock # 25997

This is an antique Sherry decanter. An English, glass and silver plated spirit bottle, dating to the Edwardian period, circa 1910. Tall profile and finely detailed silver plated frame affords a striking addition to any collection of early 20th century tableware.

- Highly distinctive silver plated bottle frame, showcasing the quality and artistry of Edwardian design
- Desirable aged patina, with a gently time-worn character from decades of use
- Blown glass with a lightly patinated appearance, free of marks or loss
- Silver plate presents a bright appearance, with minimal tarnishing
- Foliate motif on the frame with engraved pattern detail, adding refined decorative interest
- Faceted orb stopper, sitting neatly within the silver plated collar for secure closure
- Tall profile featuring a broad body and elongated neck, ideal for both display and serving
- Well-balanced proportions, ensuring stability and ease of handling
- Elegant combination of glass and silver plated elements, exemplifying Edwardian taste
