

Antique Public House Tankard, English, Pewter, Quart Jug, Breweriana, Victorian

DESCRIPTION

Our Stock # 26031

This is an antique public house tankard. An English pewter and brass quart jug, dating to the late Victorian period, circa 1890. A characterful and authentic example, rich in social history and traditional pub measure detail.

- A fine example of period tavern ware with classic quart form and a robust, tactile presence
- Displays a desirable aged patina with a gently time-worn appearance
- Polished brass rim presents subtle golden tones, contrasting with the weathered pewter
- Broad, comfortable handle with a distinctive serpentine form
- Fascia hand engraved, appearing to read Imperial Standard
- Replete with official Quart markings for public house measures
- Features the Victorian cypher, with later Edwardian verification marks
- The base engraved with reference to the White Lion public house, Brighton
- Formerly of Queen's Road, the pub operated between 1790 and 1973

DIMENSIONS

Max Width: 17cm (6.75")
 Max Depth: 12cm (4.75")
 Max Height: 15cm (6")

LIST PRICE

£975.00

Search London Fine for #26031 , or scan the QR code for more photos and details