Antique Gentleman's Elbow Chair, English, Morning Room Seat, Georgian, C.1800

DESCRIPTION

Our Stock # 26206
This is an antique Gentleman's Elbow chair. An English, mahogany desk or morning room seat in Chippendale taste, dating to the Georgian period, circa 1800.
A wonderful example of Thomas Chippendale-inspired craftsmanship, offering elegance, comfort and refined decorative interest.

- Select stocks display fine grain interest with warm caramel hues
- Presents a desirable aged patina, the cushion with some light marking
- Ideal for the morning room, study or refined reception spaces
- Professionally reupholstered in the traditional manner for lasting comfort

- Chippendale influence to the crest rail in cupid's bow or yoke form
- The famous Chippendale Ears adorn each side of the crest rail
- Decorative back splat with striking pierced fretwork artistry
- Graceful arms extend outward, terminating in scrolled knuckles over serpentine supports
