

Antique Tavern Pint Tankard, English, Pewter Drinking Jug, Glass Base, Victorian

DESCRIPTION

Our Stock # 26234

This is an antique tavern's pint tankard. An English, pewter drinking jug with glass base, and personal monogram, dating to the mid Victorian period, circa 1860.

- Charming pint tankard with a personalised finish
- Displaying a desirable aged patina, gently time-worn with use
- Antique pewter presents a weathered appearance and metallic feel
- Broad, rolled handle presents a well-balanced, tactile fit
- Engraved to the fascia with the monogram G.C.S. in Victorian copperplate cursive script
- Replete with a glass bottom, a maritime legend to avoid taking the King's Shilling
- In the days of conscription by press gangs, recruiters would drop a coin into a drinker's jug
- The rationale behind the glass bottom would highlight the ruse, and avoid the contract

This is delightful antique tavern's pint tankard, with pleasing tavern and maritime interest. Skilfully personalised with a fine monogram, this wonderful example has survived in appealing, original order. Delivered ready to enjoy or display.
