

Antique Writing Slope, Bramah Lock, Victorian, Mechi London, c.1840

DESCRIPTION

Our Stock # 18.5728

This is an antique writing slope in mahogany with Bramah lock, an English, Victorian slope by renowned maker with Royal connections, John Joseph Mechi, dating to the early 19th century circa 1840.

- A superior piece of quality craftsmanship
- Warm russet hues to the select mahogany
- Grain interest with a desirable aged patina
- Vacant inlaid brass cartouche to the top
- Fitted with a quality working Bramah lock and flush cabin handles to the sides
- Opening the slope reveals a baized slope with stationery compartments behind
- Shaped, inlaid brass escutcheons with working locks and keys
- Leather pulls to access document safes beneath where the maker's label is found
- A silver topped ink well features a twist lock lid preventing spills in transit
- A removable pen tray, one lidded and two vacant compartments
- A delightful pin lock releases the external drawer

Search London Fine for #18.5728 , or scan the QR code for more photos and details

DIMENSIONS

Max Width: 50.5cm (20")

Max Depth: 28cm (11")

Max Height: 19cm (7.5")

Find out more about John Joseph Mechi here...

