

Antique Campaign Writing Slope, Ship's Captain, Correspondence, Desk, Victorian

DESCRIPTION

Our Stock # 18.6919

This is an antique campaign writing slope. An English, mahogany ship's captain's correspondence desk, dating to the Victorian period, circa 1850.

- Superior campaign piece with captivating roll-top action
- Displays a desirable aged patina
- Select mahogany shows fine grain interest
- Rich caramel hues to the wax polish finish
- Upon opening the front drawer, the roll-top arcs backwards to reveal the secret gallery
- Raising from its recess, the 8 compartment letter rack flanks a central mirrored door
- The writing slope in two parts, the upper of which conceals another compartment
- Dressed in vibrant purple velour with rich, golden tooled border
- Dressed with a shield shaped brass escutcheon with working inset lock — key present
- Brass drop handles on shaped backs, with similar handle to the rising compartment
- Campaign handles to the sides feature recessed pulls with demi-lune handles

Search London Fine for #18.6919, or scan the QR code for more photos and details

DIMENSIONS

Max Width: 44cm (17.25")
 Max Depth: 45cm (17.75")
 Max Height: 27.5cm (10.75")
 Open Width: 44cm (17.25")
 Open Depth: 66cm (26")
 Open Height: 41.5cm (16.25")

