

Antique Embossed Fire Screen, Oak, Leather, Fireside, Arts And Crafts, Edwardian

DESCRIPTION

Our Stock # 18.7522

This is an antique embossed fire screen. An English, oak and leather fireside guard in Arts and Crafts taste, dating to the Edwardian period, circa 1910.

- Strikingly unusual and of superb craftsmanship
- Displays a desirable aged patina throughout
- Wavy oak frame shows fine grain interest and deep russet hues
- Press stud borders unite the dark tanned leather with the frame
- Incredible embossed leather screen a testament to the craftsman's skill
- Depicting a forest hunting scene, a hunting dog chases a galloping stag through a glade
- Graced with copious fine detail, the reverse shows light caramel hues and natural leather grain
- Raised upon a pair of trestle feet with block toes

This is a fascinating and striking antique embossed fire screen. Superb leather detail is set to captivate in any room. Delivered waxed, polished and ready for the fireside.

Search London Fine for #18.7522, or scan the QR code for more photos and details

DIMENSIONS

Max Width: 47cm (18.5")

Max Depth: 15cm (6")

Max Height: 64cm (25.25")

