

Large Antique Housekeeper's Cabinet, Dresser, Arts & Crafts, After Liberty, 1910

DESCRIPTION

Our Stock # 18.7680

This is a large antique housekeeper's cabinet. An English, oak dresser or sideboard displaying Arts and Crafts taste in the manner of Liberty & Co, dating to the Edwardian period, circa 1910.

- Impressive example of the Arts & Crafts movement of the early 20th century
- Displays a desirable aged patina throughout
- Select oak shows fine grain interest and wisps of medullary rays
- Dark stained stocks beneath a quality wax polish finish
- Unmarked as such, crafted in the manner of Liberty & Co of London
  - Back stand arranged as a glazed cupboard, arcaded display gallery and wide sideboard
- Cabinet door with original plate glass with fascinating external strap hinges
- Trio of support columns to either side with turned pilasters
- Single, wide drawer sits neatly above a generously sized recess - ideal for a dog cushion
- Cabinet to the opposite side with field panel doors, dressed with a small brass lock escutcheon — key present
- Gothic revival overtones present in the form of strap hinges and quarterfoil backplates
