

Pair Antique Books, Winkle's British Cathedrals, English, Reference, Victorian

DESCRIPTION

Our Stock # 18.9818

This is a pair of two antique books, Volume 1 & 2 of Winkles' British Cathedrals. An English language, hard bound illustrated reference guide to 19th century architecture, dating to the early Victorian period, dated 1838.

Robert Garland (1808 - 1863) was a 19th century architect working out of London at the end of the Georgian period until his passing in the mid Victorian. The text descriptions were added by Thomas Moule (1784 - 1851), an English antiquarian, a map maker and write of heraldic interest. The title published by Effingham Wilson, Royal Exchange and Charles Tilt out of London's Fleet Street.

- Presented in good antique condition - intact with minor marks to pages
- Graced with superb frontispieces to each volume
- Fascinating descriptions across 144 and 140 pages respectively
- Delightful plate engravings accentuate various scenes from each cathedral

This is a charming pair of antique reference books, the illustrative volumes of Winkle's British Cathedrals. Ideal for the lover of 19th century architecture or collector. Delivered ready to enjoy.
