

Heavy Pair Of Portico Tables, English, Iron, Statuary, Planter Stand, Victorian

DESCRIPTION

Our Stock # 18.9909

This is a pair of portico tables. An English, walnut and cast iron statuary or planter stand, dating to the Victorian period, circa 1850.

• Exquisite and substantial ironmongery from the evocative time of the Great Exhibition

- Displaying a desirable aged patina and in good order throughout
- Quality walnut plinths of 1" stock show fine grain interest and rich caramel hues
- Monumental cast iron stands - substantial at a weight of over 47kg (103 lb) each
- Generously sized plinth ideal for showcasing large statuary or impressive planters
- Broad plume of feather motif to the uprights with an open central atrium
- Deeply reeded column sits atop a pair of bulb form collars
- Wide tapering foot assures a secure, impervious mount for treasured items

This is a dashing pair of antique portico tables, exceptional in their steadfast proportion and tasteful Great Exhibition period aesthetic. A rare and impressive opportunity to outfit a fine country home or period hotel with early Victorian display stands. Delivered ready for the home or institution.
