

Antique Design Catalogue, Art Industriel, French, Architecture Folio, Victorian

DESCRIPTION

Our Stock # 24215

This is an antique design catalogue, Art Industriel. A French, soft cover lithography architectural folio, dating to the early Victorian period, circa 1840.

Established in 1829, Henry Rittner (1802 - 1840) and Jean-Baptiste Adolphe Goupil (1806 - 1893) formed as a contemporary arts merchant and auction house known as Maison Goupil, headquartered in Paris. Upon the disappearance and passing of Rittner in 1840, Goupil partnered with Théodore Vibert to establish the company as Goupil, Vibert et Cie. The company was an eminent dealer in fine lithography and engravings, later opening international branches, including a New York premises.

- Beautifully illustrated catalogue, with a rare intricacy to delight the reader
- Presented intact, with a delicate soft cover and light ageing to pages
- Printed across 135 pages, each facing page with a striking architectural lithograph
 - Of beguiling detail and skill, each plate a fascinating example of 19th century craftsmanship
 - From grand facade to types of framing, the included illustrations are wonderfully ornate
