

Antique Book, Ovid's Art of Love, English, Roman Period, Bound, Regency, C.1824

DESCRIPTION

Our Stock # 24244
 This is antique copy of Ovid's Art of Love. An English translation of a Roman elegy, dating to the Regency period, dated 1824.
 Originally written in Latin in 2 AD, Ars Amatoria - Art of Love in English - is an elegy across three sections. The first is written as a guide for a Roman gentleman to find a partner, with book two giving instruction on how to keep her. The final book reverses the narrative and instructs women how to keep a man. The text is written as if to entertain, being ironic, but never obscene. The writer, Publius Ovidius Naso (Ovid in English) was a Roman poet during the reign of Augustus.

- <li class="p1">Charmingly petite form, with fascinating ancient content translated for the modern reader
- <li class="p1">Displays a desirable aged patina, lightly time worn but intact
- <li class="p1">Bound in a textured canvas on board and accentuated with gilt titling
- <li class="p1">Illustrated frontispiece opposite title page, dated to the bottom 1824
- <li class="p1">Translated by notable writers such as Dryden and Congreve
- <li class="p1">Presented in English from the original Latin text across 238+ pages

DIMENSIONS

Max Width: 8cm (3.25")
 Max Depth: 2cm (.75")
 Max Height: 12.5cm (5")

LIST PRICE

£395.00

This is a fascinating antique translation of Ovid's Art o