DESCRIPTION

Our Stock # R0673 This is a Georgian, antique dresser base dating from the early 18th century. The honey coloured English oak possesses a highly desirable aged patina, the grain detail and medullary rays displaying well through the soft waxed finish. Raised on four tapered, turned legs terminating in pad feet and united by a triple arched apron to the front, the two rear legs are square section with stop ended chamfers to the lower sections. The planked top is finished with a simple edge moulding, to the rear three shallow drawers are punctuated with blanking panels beneath a plate rack shelf. Below, three wide and deep drawers offer generous storage with edge moulding, each dressed with solid brass batwing drop handles and escutcheons. A vernacular piece with heaps of country kitchen charm, solid joints and construction, delivered waxed, polished and ready for the home.
